

Acknowledgements

The project director wishes to thank first and foremost the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada, the University of British Columbia, the United States National Historical Publications and Records Commission, the Italian National Research Council, the Italian Central Office for Archival Properties (specifically the Documentation and the Publication Offices), the Italian Institute of Culture in Vancouver, the National Archives of Canada, the United States National Archives and Records Administration, and all the other institutions and organizations that have provided financial support to the InterPARES Project and that are identified in the Introduction. Special thanks go to the School of Library, Archival and Information Studies for providing the office space for the headquarters of the project. The director also wishes to give the most heartfelt thanks to the following InterPARES Project staff for their deep commitment to the research and the researchers, which was manifested not only in long working hours and constant enthusiastic availability, but also in a flurry of creative ideas that have contributed significantly to the good management of the project: coordinators Tahra Fung (University of British Columbia), Kevin Glick (University at Albany, State University of New York), and Jean-Pascal Morghese (University of British Columbia), former coordinators Peter Van Garderen (University of British Columbia) and Richard Sloma (University at Albany, State University of New York), and project assistant Sandy Orr. Special thanks go to the Post-doctoral Fellow, Brent Lee, who has provided invaluable managerial support to the direction of the project and intellectual contribution to the research, and whose expertise has opened the way to the second phase of the project. Of course, the heart of a research project is the research team. The project director wishes to thank profusely all InterPARES researchers for their dedication to the project, and in particular the chairs of the task forces—Heather MacNeil, Terry Eastwood, and Ken Thibodeau—and of the Glossary Committee, Ken Hannigan, for their outstanding leadership: The Long-Term Preservation of Authentic Electronic Records: Findings of the InterPARES Project is their work and speaks by itself of the remarkable intellectual effort that everyone has put into the project and of the wealth of new knowledge so generated. It is not the practice of a project director to single out individual researchers, but the exceptional contribution of the archivists of the National Archives of Canada (NAC) cannot go without special recognition: the amount and quality of their work in carrying out case studies, disseminating research results, providing constant feedback, and enriching the research workshops with their experience and creative ideas have been outstanding, and their commitment to the international collaboration has been unflinching. The names of the NAC archivists who were official members of InterPARES are listed in the Introduction; the names of those who constituted the NAC internal InterPARES research team are: Cathy Bailey, Dave Brown, Jana Buhlmann, Marnie Burnham, Cara Downey, Andrew Horrall, and Paul Marsden. Finally, warm thanks go to the student research assistants whose enthusiasm and dedication have given the research that sparkle that scholarship by itself can never achieve: it is hoped their future careers and lives will be enriched by the work they did for InterPARES as much as the InterPARES research and researchers have been enriched by their unique individual contributions.

The individual task forces wish to thank the InterPARES Project staff for their unflinching support. Special thanks go to the following research assistants: Chaja Beck, Gijs Boon, Mirjam Brouwer, Henk Duits, Ingmar Koch, Jacqueline Stroet, Robert van Vuuren, Marianne Vos (Netherlands Institute for Archival Education and Research); Andrew Ashton, Rebecca Hatcher, Irene Kaplan, Michelle Powers, Mark Wolfe (University at Albany, SUNY); Tiran Behrouz, Lisa Beitel, Kathy Bossort, Deirdre Bryden, Kathleen Burns, Robert Edwards, Anna Gibson, Prisca Giordani, Elaine Goh, Robyn Hulley, Shadrack Katuu, Jacqueline Killawee, Marta Maftei, Ian McAndrew, Shauna McRanor, April Miller, Alex Richmond, Sion Romaine, Claire Vesseire, Jeff Whyte, and Lara Wilson, Joleen Wright, Jane Zhang (University of British Columbia); Francesca Marini, Eun Park, Marisol Ramos, Shelby Sannet, Kalpana Shankar, Ciaran Trace, Julio Vera (University of California, Los Angeles); Melissa M. Terras (Humanities Advanced Technology and Information Institute [HATII], University of Glasgow); Flora Anastassiou, Vincenzo De Meo, Susanna Orefice, Silvia Trani (University of Rome); and Monica Grossi (University of Urbino).

The Authenticity Task Force would also like to thank the following institutions, organizations, and their staff for their assistance in conducting the case studies: Academic Medical Centre, Utrecht; Banff Centre for the Arts; Bank of Italy; Canadian Intellectual Property Office; the Government of Canada's Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development, Department of National Defence, and Department of the Solicitor General; Lepera & Ward Architectural Firm; Ministry of Housing, Spatial Planning and the Environment, Government of the Netherlands; Ministry of Justice, Government of the Netherlands; Municipal Environment Agency, Rome; Nanjing University; the National Archives of Canada; National Bank of Labour; New York State Workers' Compensation Board; Province of North Holland, Haarlem; the Smithsonian Institution; the United States National Archives and Records Administration; the United States Patent and Trademark Office; the University at Albany, SUNY; the University of British Columbia; the University of California, Los Angeles; and the University of Glasgow.

The Authenticity Task Force acknowledges gratefully the following agencies and institutions for the resources they have invested in the project: Bank of Italy; Beijing Municipal Archives; the Central State Archives of Italy; the National Archives of Canada; the Netherlands Institute for Archival Education and Research; the Smithsonian Institution; the State Archives of China; the State Archives of Rome; the United States National Archives and Records Administration; the University at Albany, SUNY; the University of British Columbia; the University of California, Los Angeles; and the University of Glasgow.

The Appraisal Task Force would like to thank the following institutions for hosting its workshops or arranging meetings to communicate the results of its work and to solicit comments: the Hong Kong Public Record Office; the National Archives and Records Administration; the National Archives of Canada; the Netherlands Institute for Archival Education and Research; the State Archives of Rome and Italian Central Direction of Archives; the University of British Columbia, School of Library, Archival and Information Studies; and the University of Toronto, Faculty of Information Studies.

Special thanks go to Yvette Hackett of the National Archives of Canada for her help at the May 2001 meeting of the task force in Ottawa.

The Appraisal Task Force gratefully acknowledges the following agencies and institutions for their support: the East Asian Section of the International Council on Archives (EASTICA); the Faculty of Information Studies at the University of Toronto; the National Archives and Records Administration; the National Archives of Canada; the National Archives of Ireland; the Netherlands Institute for Archival Education and Research at the University of Amsterdam; the State Archives of China; and the State Archives of Rome and the Central Direction of Archives of Italy.

The Preservation Task Force would like to thank the Collaborative Electronic Notebook Systems Association; Curtin University of Technology; Georgia Tech Research Institute; Johns Hopkins University; National Archives of Canada; National Archives of France; National Archives of Italy; National Archives of Sweden; National Archives of The Netherlands; the Public Records Office, U.K.; San Diego Supercomputer Center; University at Albany; University of California, Los Angeles; University of British Columbia; and the U.S. National Archives and Records Administration. The task force would like to add Michael Skipper of the National Archives and Records Administration to the list of those deserving special mention.

The Strategy Task Force would especially like to thank research assistant Ian McAndrew (University of British Columbia).